

The Moment of Truth

Tony Bennett

If you hear music when she's near you
And Christmas comes every day of the year
Then you must know why it's the first clue
That the moment of truth is near

If every time she glances your way
A million bells start to ring loud and clear
And, after one kiss, you yell "Mayday!"
Then the moment of truth is near

There will come a day when she looks at you
Thrills you through and through and calls your name
That will be the day when you say "I do"
Cause you've discovered that you've grown tired of playing the game

And then you both know you're through scheming
"Oh Promise Me" starts to sing in your ear
You're wide-awake, boy, you're not dreaming
Cause when you say "I do", the moment of truth
At last is here!

There will come a day when she looks at you
Thrills you through and through and calls your name
That will be the day when you say "I do"
Cause you've discovered that you've grown tired of
playing the game

And then you both know you're through scheming
"Oh Promise Me" starts to sing in your ear
You're wide-awake, boy, you're not dreaming
Cause when you say "I do", the moment of truth
At last is here!
