

Every Single Reason In The World

Tony Carey

Just look at our life, how it has changed
Look at the years, where have they gone
It's funny how nothing stays the same, baby
It's funny how you're swept up, carried along

Every single day I count my blessings
Every single way I love you, girl
You give me every single reason to keep wanting you
Every single reason in the world

I think about the times when you weren't there, baby
I think about sleeping all alone
I think about the daylight in your hair, baby
I think about you and me coming home

Every single day I count my blessings
Every single way I love you, girl
You give me every single reason to keep wanting you
Every single reason in the world