Naked

Tracy Bonham

My stubborn skin Is wearing thin I beared my soul You waltzed right in I gave you everything And you just made me feel so very Naked And I don't remember How I let myself Become so unraveled I spilled my guts On your best shoes You keep it in I let it loose It's only love that makes me Feel like getting so completely Naked And I don't remember How I let myself Become so unraveled I'm naked Pretty as a heartache Waiting for my second skin to settle in Your hardened heart Can't hide you now It loves as much As you allow And in the end The eyeball on me Will just take you down And you'll be Naked Nothing, but a heartache And you know There's nothing that can hide you now You're naked Pretty as a heartache Going out exactly the way you came in
