

Somewhere Between The Moon And You

Tracy Lawrence

Sitting here in Ft. Worth and for what it's worth
It might as well be Timbuktu, girl I'm missing you
The further I go in life, the more I realize
I'm no closer to that elusive moon

I can't put out your fire 'cause everywhere I turn
There's a memory to burn

Somewhere between the moon and you
I'm fighting off the chill of the cold hard truth
That rainbow I was chasing has left my whole world blue
I lost my dreams somewhere between the moon and you

I still see your smile and it haunts me every mile
Along this winding road that I walk alone
They say that time should ease the pain
But in my heart a bitter rain still lingers on How could I have been so wrong

I climbed that ladder thinking I could never fall
Until I lost it all

Somewhere between the moon and you
I'm fighting off the chill of the cold hard truth
That rainbow I was chasing left my whole world blue
I lost my dreams somewhere between the moon and you
That rainbow I was chasing has left my whole world blue
I lost my dreams somewhere between the moon and you
