

Evening Blue

Traffic

Sitting all alone by the fireside
Listen to the wind in the chimney top
Haven't slept for days and I'm still wide eyed
Try not to think, but my mind won't stop
Evening shadows making my heart sing out
With the setting sun turning leaves to brown, yeah
If I had a lover who's heart was true
I wouldn't be alone in this evening blue
Everybody's looking for something in life
Not everyone finds what they're looking for
Everybody wants a little happiness in life
But everyone can open the door
Morning wakens, making my heart sing out
Now that summer's here, changing fears and doubts
If I had a lover who's heart was true
I wouldn't be alone in this evening blue
With the setting sun turning leaves to brown
If I had a lover who's heart was true
I wouldn't be alone in this evening blue
Sitting all alone by the fireside
Listen to the wind in the chimney top
Haven't slept for days and I'm still wide eyed, yeah
Try not to think, but my mind won't stop
Evening shadows making my heart sing out
With the setting sun turning leaves to brown
If I had a lover who's heart was true
I wouldn't be alone in this evening blue
