

Kareen

Treble Charger

You're dragging me along
I cannot hold it
You say it's what you are
Your staring scares me

Antagonize your fears, your longing
You're setting out your fears, you're falling
I turn my back on you
You're far too clever now

Kareen is calling out her name
She disappeared beneath her pain
But noone's listening
Noone's listening

I contradict myself
You did not need it
You gave up from the start
So where's that leave me?

And what I'd like to know is easy
If it's your right, than don't believe me
I turn my back on you
You're far too clever now

Reckless leap to try once more
It's really not that strange
You'll learn to be adored
And not to be ashamed
