I want to whisper something in your ear This train's not stopping but you don't have to fear One destination, do you know where it ends? You've bought the ticket, but so what?

This is not science fiction, baby, here's the deal Good fights evil every day, it's for real You're going somewhere, no matter what you believe I'd check my map if I were you

You'll feel a little strange but it's alright
Everything could turn around tonight
Baby, let me turn on the lights
You will see for miles and miles, it's alright, alright

One thing after another, that's the way that it goes You ride the consequences of the journey you chose I'm just like you but I know which way is up It comes with a guarantee for life

You'll feel a little strange but it's alright
Everything could turn around tonight
Baby, let me turn on the lights
You will see for miles and miles, it's alright, alright
Miles and miles, alright

And if you find you're sitting in the anxious seat And everything that you've become is incomplete Stretch out your hand, come on now, get up on your feet Your tide is turning

Here is something in your ear You've bought the ticket, check it out

You'll feel a little strange but it's alright Everything could turn around tonight Baby, let me turn on the lights You will see for miles and miles, it's alright

You'll feel a little strange but it's alright
Everything could turn around tonight
Baby, let me turn on the lights
You will see for miles and miles, it's alright, alright

Miles and miles, it's alright, alright Miles and miles, it's alright, alright Miles and miles, alright