

Wake Up Call

Trent Dabbs

Five thirty early wake up call
It's just too early for me to get up
I can't compete with the sunshine outside
I pull the sheets up over me head
I'm looking for another message to send
I call you up but you don't ever let me in
You're the first thing on my mind
Should I had known I'd never forget you
I can never let it go
Now I know I'll never forget you
Too early to tell you know
You fly without warning
I breathe without thinking
Should I leave without looking
The sky is always waiting
I didn't peg you as the gunshot type
I got the wool pulled over my eyes
Have you known about me all this time my love
What a sweet surprise
You came along when I was counting shoe strings
Watching movies waiting to be ending
Worried that I'd never find the right scene
Until you walked right in
Should I had known I'd never forget you
I can never let it go
Now I know I'll never forget you
Too early to tell you know
You fly without warning
I breathe without thinking
Should I leave without looking
The sky is always waiting
Fly without warning
Breathe without thinking
Should I leave without looking
The sky is always waiting
The sky is always waiting
