

Never Ending Story

Tuxedomoon

Now this is the beginning of a long long story
This is only the beginning of a story
That will take many more songs and situations to tell
You have been away on a trip
You're back now
Well now you're back and somehow something has changed
You can quite put your finger on it
But things aren't quite the same
Europe Europe
Europe has changed
In Vienna you see a cruise boat and a group of little old ladies
Lining up loading up
About to take a trip
Down the green river of dreams
Now this is the beginning of a long story
We all need taht panacea
So you wake up one morning
You go downstairs
Out into the street
You pass by something you've passed by 1000 times before
But this time you really see this thing
As if for the first time
As if you'd recieved a new set of eyes the night before
As if the endless rain
Had whased away the veener
Had washed away the trasparent shield
Has washed away the cataracts from your eyes
We all need that panacea
At every border
A war lies simmering in wait
