Dreams

TV on the Radio

All your dreams are over now And all your wings have fallen down Oh, all your dreams are over now And all your wings have fallen down

She's just like you So why keep doing what you do? Why cut a friend? Why cruise that mean lean to an end?

You could have heel toed To another place You could have peeled slow To a better face

But your heart can't grieve For your little dreams Oh no, your heart can't grieve Not for your little dreams

All your dreams are over now And all your wings have fallen down All your dreams are over now And all your wings have fallen down

Broke trust in two Now no one's looking out for you Why keep it cruel? Why waste so much to play the fool?

And maybe I'm the fool but I think we'd find That we could all be so so kind If you'd just leave your treadmill power trip behind Oh, leave your treadmill power trip behind

And maybe it's best that you're so so blind It's best that your so, so blind Because your heart can't grieve I know your heart can't grieve

I know your heart can't grieve What your eyes won't see But you were my favorite moment Of our dead century

I know your heart can't grieve What your eyes won't see But you were my favorite moment Of our dead century

But all your dreams are over now And all your wings have fallen down Oh, all your dreams are over now And all your wings have fallen down

Oh, warfarin' terrapin Unconfined, undesigned Undersigned, bantering Bartering, bellowing

Barracking, blundering Pillaging, plundering Living and lavishing Hammerings, harrowing

Flourishing, flattening Leveling, reveling Wrecking and ravaging Savoring, savaging

Oh, warfarrin' terrapin Unconfined, undesigned You've got me Worried and wondering

All your dreams are over now And all your wings have fallen down All your dreams are over now
