

You Still Love Me

Tyrone Wells

It's taken years to build this house
At least a thousand cards, and I
Keep praying that it won't fall down

I don't want anyone to see
What's going on inside of me
So I hide with shame behind these walls
But you see through it all

You know everything about me, and somehow you still love me
Somehow you still love me
You know everything about me, there's nothing that you can't see
Somehow you still love me

I've been so careless with your heart
So many times I let you down
And still you wait for me with open arms

It's outrageous but it's true
No matter what I do
I know your love for me will never change

It will always be the same

You know everything about me, and somehow you still love me
Somehow you still love me
You know everything about me, there's nothing that you can't see
Somehow you still love me

I know I've said these words before
But I've never meant it more
You are everything to me
So I'm standing here outside your door
You're all I'll ever need