Umphrey's McGee

We believe there's something here worth dying for Uniforms are old but we'll still try some more

I'd probably be wrong if I was right....

The breeze it sees from all consideration turmoil stands like old rubber bands unbreaking

Anything worth mentioning need not be too polite... We wont mind

I've seen much bigger men than me your will be done I'm not the only one this task it seems a backwards path when things are said in context big enough to wrap in boxes the things we'd say are'nt easy to replace be brief if you're unsure that's much braver than before so what's your point? Who's the next you will annoint? theres nowhere to transcend to if we've got no ears to lend you

I hate to say it you're no replacement Excuse you cannot buy it seems so aimless just short and painless the truth you cannot hide the trouble measures there's something better there's one more word to try I hate to say it youre no replacement I'm never good at lies never good with liars never good with lies

Had you thought about it, Could you live without it? 'Cause it's all about you in the end

And it's so elaborate but you never had it and you cannot grab it if you try
