Walking, thinking, feeling, responding Uncovering and discovering new things about myself and this mad world around me Many philosophies, many tongues, many dialects and Different styles but wild is wild, calm is calm, but cool is mature Most cool cats are kids at heart Now there's business along with the art A chef with words, a chef with herbs, a chef with vegetables, soy products and bean curd Some look at my face and say you're quite absurd And I say why, 'cos I'm not down with the herd? Of the world I haven't seen much, but with the mind I escape the ghetto's clutch Loose cigarettes, ass bets on celo games, abandoned cars and colourful names on walls Suburb days were filled with sun rays and crooked cops looked at me sideways Singin' that same old song, where ya from, 'cos round here you don't belong Long strolls unravel my soul like a scroll telling many stories untold But some look at my face and say you're quite absurd And I say why, 'cos I'm not down with the herd? I an' I light up the sky, who be the sun, to stir up your adrenaline like African drums Status quo, no. Along with the grain, no. I got my own Similar to none, dangerous like itchy fingers on guns, graceful like swans But there's a built in bomb Must defuse, must choose, right or wrong, win or lose Born to die, that's why I ask why is it so hard to get a piece of the pie Some look at my face and say you're quite absurd

And I say why, 'cos I'm not down with the herd?
