My Lagan Love

Van Morrison

Where pagan streams sing lullabies There blows a lily fair The twilight gleam is in her eye The night is on her hair

And like a lovesick lenashee She hath my heart in thrall No life have I, no liberty For love is Lord of all

And often when the beetles horn
Has lulled the eve to sleep
I'll steal into her shielding lorn
And through the doorway creep

There on the cricket's singing stone She makes the bog wood fire And hums in sad, sweet and undertone The song of hearts desire

The song of hearts desire The song of hearts desire
