

Whispers

Vancouver Sleep Clinic

You lost your purpose quietly
In the night
In your eyes
No paving to your heartstrings
On your own
Left alone
A silent rush of thunder
A voice that pulls you under
A whisper that stole you away

We never fought to lose it
We didn't build to burn this
You don't have to carry the weight of your sin
We didn't rise to cave in
We never left for safety
I will not just age to grow weary and bleed

These burdens brought you crashing
Under doubt
Through the ground
They sealed your lips with silence
No resistance
Not a sound

We never fought to lose it
We didn't build to burn this
You don't have to carry the weight of your sin
We didn't rise to cave in
We never left for safety
I will not just age to grow weary and bleed

It's worth too much to give it in
You gave it all for this

We never fought to lose it
We didn't build to burn this
You don't have to carry the weight of your sin
We didn't rise to cave in
I will not just age to grow weary and bleed
