

We Were All Uprooted

Vangelis

We were all uprooted
The earth was stolen from beneath our feet
We became a Diaspora
An unnamed nation of bastards

We channeled our roots to the pulse of light deep within the galaxies of our mind
Our breath was the sky
Our dreams were water

We claimed the wilderness
We recognized each other