

1981

Vanilla Sky

The things have changed so quickly
As a dream's begin to rest
They turned into a present
That fights to coexist

We're greater in the evening
Our breakfast starts at 3
The habits that we're keeping send peaceful minds to sleep

So this is growing up
Or maybe growing older
But I failed to ask the question
Why the innocence is over

Invulnerability
That comes from feeling lost
My heart are mine already
By defends a future cause

I'm sick with hesitation
Fight back the tears I bleed
And brave the suffocation
The city inflects me
I face the confrontation
With the emptiness I feel

There's too much confusion
The circle never ends
My friends resemble strangers
Until the next weekend

Doesn't matter what I choose
The choice has been made for me
They tell me what to think and what is right for me

I'm sick with hesitation
Fight back the tears I bleed
And brave the suffocation
The city inflects me
I face the confrontation
With the emptiness I feel

Why am I ignoring?
The troubles in my head
My smile is getting boring the longer I pretend

It's such a common feeling
We hide the feel within
To never easy answers
Is a quest to die in vain

I'm sick with hesitation
Fight back the tears I bleed
And brave the suffocation

The city inflects me
I face the confrontation
With the emptiness I feel

(I just need to break the silence)
(Silence without you)
(I just need to break the silence)
(Silence without you)