

Ten Years

Vanilla Sky

Another year went over another day goes by it seems like we're always here I'm facing up this burden that wakes me up all night It's aching in my head
And this feeling of regret for the years when we were young for how fast we've lost our innocence Where have our dreams disappeared Where did our convictions go I watch my expectations crashing on the solid truth

Tell me that you still believe
In the things we started here
Hold me cause you're not afraid Tell me that you're leading there show me it's not over yet Tell me this is not the end

The more I'm getting older
The more I understand what this is all about
And this feeling of regret for the years I live right now maybe it's the consequence of what i really am

In this times of no reactions At this point of no return would you wake me up to listen when the revolution burns When it seems like it's all over and you're crawling on the ground would you still look up for me still I'm chasing up my dream

Tell me that you still believe
In the things we started here
Show me this is not the end