The Alarm

A hard fall on a rough path her body her betrayer she spoke as she fought back to lose is to lose but i'll never die for you and now i'm saved with the flare, the spark, the alarm i am willing this i'm not alone in this fight you've made a curse of it there's no excuse for the trite not one would they believe the things we've done this gives my sleepless nights a reason to be home they're crying out as they make their way down in the midst of all this drowning what will come of us swing now hard the reveille sounds was it worth it they set the fire with eyes so wide a sudden sense of comfort washed over them at once they're crying out as they make their way down in the midst of it what became swing now hard with eyes so wide love is all there was