

It's gone too far
And you're too gone
Could you hide a moment from the sun?

And how come
It's only one
Of us that gets you to look back when we're done?

Oh, you took what you wanted to take
And yet you never wanted nothing from me
Oh, you took what you wanted to take
And yet you never wanted nothing from me

You had too much
And it caught up
A tide will turn for no one in the end

And there's no time
In this lifespan
To break apart the walls you used to take

Oh, you took what you wanted to take
And yet you never wanted nothing from me
Oh, you took what you wanted to take
And yet you never wanted nothing from me

And the eyes close
As the light fades
On the last shore
Of a lifespan

Oh, you took what you wanted to take
And yet you never wanted nothing from me
Oh, you took what you wanted to take
And yet you never wanted nothing from me

And the eyes close
As the light fades
On the last shore
Of a lifespan
