Vertical Horizon

He pushes your hair back
Just like you like it
He watches you sleeping
Until you wake up, wake up

It's gotta be here and now and forever
And sometimes you don't even notice
What you think or feel or remember
Sometimes you don't wanna know it

But I love you more
Yes I love you more
The sun will fade out
And the sea run dry
To a drop of rain
And I'll love you more

He tells you you're perfect
And you hear it but you don't feel it
He holds you when you're crying
And it seems like you're always crying

It's gotta be now and then and whenever
And sometimes you don't even notice
What you think or feel or remember
Sometimes you don't wanna know it

I love you more
Yes I love you more
The sun will fade out
And the sea run dry
To a drop of rain
And I'll love you more

Truth lies covered inside
Everything collides
And you fade until you fake it
To feel alive
All the shame and all the blame
And the fragment that somehow remain
Always there to greet you and keep you
Kiss you goodnight

I love you more
Yes I love you more
The sun will fade out
And the sea run dry
To a drop of rain
And I'll love you more
