

(The reason I created you, well, it was never an issue to me while it was happening..)

Once I stated going the path I chose
Nothing seemed real, and nothing seemed impossible
I gathered the tools they gave me
I summoned all grudge and hatred and grief
Going down, way down, to see:
The sorrows, the demons, deep regrets and sins

I felt this, I was the son of magic of power of will to create
So I built all the dukedoms black, thus spoke the nightspirit

This fire that burned in the heart
This freezing moon allegiance
Mother North I commenced
Crying wolves

Speak the gospel of disease

[Solo]

Against the sun, across the mirrors, throughout the space
I made it all clear and selfish statement
I am what I do, will you follow me?

[Verse:]

Now you see this my reflection of yours
You're observing it defenceless
The adherence is far beyond intention

I didn't want you to compromise your will
I didn't let you in, that's not your promised land

[Verse:]

And the vision and the might and your insight and the light
That shines through these stained glass windows in this cell
They will never be your guide, they're here for me to hide
From all I was too weak to fight elsewhere

I don't want to leave you with nothing
But I'm afraid I have to say:
It went too far to accept it
Get away from my fairy tale

Take your toys and move away
Gather your dreams, forget them all
Before you end up like me
You don't want to end up like me
