

This Moment

Victoria Williams

This moment will never come again
I know it because it has never been before
I listen to the rain outside the door
A thousand voices singing songs that ain't been sung before
Some days while lost in reverie
I find the very hours have slipped away from me
Well as the sunlight dances through the leaves
The patterns they awaken me
And I say hey ho
This moment will never come again

I know it because it has never been before
Here we are now
Soon it will be then
Here we are now
Soon it will be then
Here we are now
Soon it will be then
It's nothing more, nothing less
Than the place that we are in
This moment will never come again
I know it because it has never been before
And I listen to the wind
And I see the trees are shaking...
