

Blood and Gasoline

Virgin Steele

Another night on the Highway, smell of hate in the air Another Season of knowing that there's nobody there so you race down the runway, leaving hope on the rails with a spike in your memory and the marks of the nails Gold and silver shed a light that's blinding hot and cold you're bleeding, you're bleeding red and flowing like a wine for crying young or old like blood and gasoline
As you rust in the mirror, as your face starts to go you can count every mile on your barren soul in the scream of the engine, sing your final song blackened and burned what was young and strong Faster and faster a nightmare we ride who'll take the reins when the miracle dies faster and faster till everything dies killing is our way of keeping alive Another night on the Highway, Blood and Dust in the air
New disease or addiction that brings that hip Death Stare
In the media madness where they proclaim you a King First they crown and annoint you then makc you dance on a string
