The daemon you hide

Vision Divine

My name was Marielle but you can call me Mary You see, like the others I can't fade away Half life (half now)...I'm a spirit now... I have no home, no place where I can rest in peace

I feel an empathy with your soul
I see you're fallen deep down with
Your fears... Have your dreams been killed by the pain?
Your tears are digging your own grave

And the daemon you hide killed the angel you got He tried to bring you light but you fell into darkness All the blood that you sweat, every drop that he dried Everything is lost... You just let him die...

Out there, stars... There are millions in the universe They seem all the same but they are different Their lights and their different colours They stand, they're still, they die... Melting with infinity

Relieve the sorrow that you keep inside Release what's left in you tonight Escape from the branch of thorns in your heart Before... Before it's just too late

And the daemon you hide killed the angel you got He tried to bring you light but you fell into darkness All the blood that you sweat, every drop that he dried Everything is lost... You just let him cry... You just let him die...

I feel the sorrow you're keeping inside
I see what's left in you tonight
Escape from the wild branch of thorns in your heart
Before... Before it's just too late

And the daemon you hide killed the angel you got He tried to bring you light but you fell into darkness All the blood that you sweat, every drop that he dried Everything is lost... You just let him...