

Willow Tree

The Waifs

Under the willow tree, that's where I wait for you
To come back to me, but you're so far away.
I just sit by here in the morning sun,
And I wait under the willow tree.

It was a bitter seed that you left that day
When you walked out my door screaming "Get out of my face!"
I took all your hurtin' words, I took your bad deeds
And I buried 'em deep underneath that tree.

Under the willow tree, that's where I wait for you
To come back to me, but you're so far away.
I just sit by here in the morning sun,
And I wait under the willow tree.

But such beauty grew from bitterness.
Oh how it's helped to heal this heavy heart,
Oh and I want you to know, yeah that it's ok.
If you come back I would welcome you like it was yesterday.

Under the willow tree, that's where I wait for you
To come back to me, but you're so far away.
I just sit by here in the morning sun,
And I wait under the willow tree.

Oh, but I'm not asking you for union, no-no.
I want your promise to be true oh,
'Cos I've been around the world, honey I've seen enough to know
There aint nobody else. I'd rather walk with you.

Under the willow tree, that's where I wait for you
To come back to me, but you're so far away.
I just sit right here and I play my guitar,
And I wait under the willow tree.

Under the willow tree.
