

"the more i own my life will improve" just proves the consumer's become the consumed consumed by possessions a hunger is fed but those who died with the most toys are still fucking dead

"why do i drive? so i can get to my job and i go to my job so i can pay for my car" well why own just one car when you can own two?
is this freedom to you, being owned by your possessions? it's a human desire to want more than you can use and this need only proves this obsession's your oppression i own so many things i don't know what to do with my life my electronics, my car, and my job mean more to me than my kids and my wife you're selling me this? how can i resist? a solution to a problem that just doesn't exist well hold on a second this is fucking absurd to believe these status symbols will determine my worth

"my worth" is worthless