

now order is restored by the ones dissatisfied with the order from before civilization is such a chore so we saw the end of war but just the end for now if we've learned anything before it's such a bore who stands where the new leaders stood before just on the other side of that thin dividing door and it's a sound so familiar as the new voices of discontent rise up from the wartorn streets