Followed

There was sunshine and now there's only rain And blue skies you turned them into pain Words were so fine I wanted everyone to know What other people hold back I loved the way you showed I never noticed blood on you before But everytime you pull another in I see a little more You control things You tell them you're a friend But if they ever try to get away You crush them in your hands

Now I see with my own eyes And not through someone else's lies Yes, I followed But with a knife I call the truth I sever ties and cut me loose I won't follow
