There's 7 billion 46 million people on the planet And most of us have the audacity to think we matter Hey, you hear the one about the comedian who croaked? Someone stabbed him in the heart, just a little poke But he keeled over 'cause he went into battle wearing chain mail made of jok Hey, you hear the one about the screenwriter who passed away? He was giving elevator pitches and the elevator got stuck halfway He ended up eating smushed sandwiches they pushed through a crack in the doo And repeating the same crappy screenplay idea about talking dogs 'til his la Hey, you hear the one about the fisherman who passed? He didn't jump off that ledge He just stepped out into the air and pulled the ground up towards him really fast Like he was pitching a line and went fishing for concrete The earth is a drum and he's hitting it on beat The reason there's smog in Los Angeles is 'cause if we could see the stars If we could see the context of the universe in which we exist And we could see how small each one of us is Against the vastness of what we don't know No one would ever audition for a McDonalds commercial again And then where would we be? No frozen dinners and no TV And is that a world we want to text in? Either someone just microwaved popcorn Or I hear the sound of a thousand people pulling their heads out of their as ses in rapid succession The people are hunched over in Boston They're starting app stores and screen printing companies in San Francisco They're grinning in Los Angeles like they've got fishhooks in the corners of their mouth But don't paint me like the good guy 'cause every time I write I get to choose the angle that you view me and select the nicest light You wouldn't respect me if you heard the typewriter chatter tap tap Tapping through my mind at night The same stupid tape loop of old sitcom dialogue And tattered memories of a girl I got to grind on in high school Filed carefully on rice paper My heart is a colored pencil But my brain is an eraser I don't want a real girl, I want to trace her from a catalogue Truth be told I'm unlikely to hold you down Cause my soul is a crowded subway train And people keep deciding to get on the next one that rolls through town I'm joining a false movement in San Francisco I'm frowning and hunched over in Boston I'm smiling in Los Angeles like I've got fishhooks in the corners of my mout And I'm celebrating on weekends Because there are 7 billion 47 million people on the planet And I have the audacity to think I matter I know it's a lie but I prefer it to the alternative Because I've got a tourniquet tied at my elbow / I've got A blunt wrap filled with compliments and I'm burnin it

You say to go to sleep but I been bouncing off my bedroom walls since I was hecka small

We're every age at once and tucked inside ourselves like Russian nesting dol

My mother is an 8 year old girl

My grandson is a 74 year old retiree whose kidneys just failed

And that's the glue between me and you

That's the screws and nails

We live in a house made of each other

And if that sounds strange that's because it is

Someone please freeze time so I can run around turning everyone's pockets in side out

And remember, you didn't see shit
