It's a Hit

We Are Scientists

I should've known that this would happen from the start This kind of function's gonna have to fall apart I guess before I would've sworn that we were friends Maybe this problem points towards some larger trend

But I still don't understand What this whole thing's about And all the words that you said Are somehow stuck in my mouth And this was going so well But I don't know what I did All I really can tell, is I've been hit I've been hit I've been hit

Well there's only so much drama I can stand And this is just about as far as I will bend So get your hands of my lepel Because I think it's time to go You oughta know better. You know, You oughta know

But I still don't understand What this whole thing's about And all the words that you said Are somehow stuck in my mouth And this was going so well But I don't know what I did All I really can tell, is I've been hit I've been hit I've been hit

As I was falling down the stairs And out the door I guess I heard you yell my name But I'm not sure You know before I could've sworn that we were friends But that's how these problems always seem to end

But I still don't understand What this whole thing's about When all the words that you said Are somehow stuck in my mouth And this was going so well But I don't know what I did All I really can tell Is that I always get hit

And I still don't understand What this whole thing's about And all the words that you said Are somehow stuck in my mouth I guess I might take it back But I'm not sure what I did All I know about that, is I've been hit I've been hit I've been hit
