

The Only Sounds

Wet Wet Wet

Weight of the world's on my shoulders
Like I've never known before
And the winter winds blowing colder
And I just can't take anymore
Feel I'm running down a dead end street
Trying to change my direction
All my troubles weighing hard on me
It brings me down, down, down

The only sounds I wanna hear,
Is the music of the ocean
And the rhythm of you breathing in my ear
As we drift away
And the only sight I wanna see
Is the light of your emotion
And the look of love from you to me
As the night turns into day

Noise in my head, getting louder and it's spinning me around something's tugging at my sleeve now, trying to tell me
That I'm too high off the ground
I can't explain it to myself
I fear I'm gonna drown (fear I'm gonna drown)
Standing out here in the pouring rain
I'm going down, down, down

The only sounds I wanna hear,
Is the music of the ocean
And the rhythm of you breathing in my ear
As we drift away
And the only sight I wanna see
Is the light of your emotion
And the look of love from you to me
As the night turns into day

So whisper words, so soft and low
The words of love that heal
And ease my soul

The only sounds I wanna hear,
Is the music of the ocean
And the rhythm of you breathing in my ear
As we drift away
And the only sight I wanna see
Is the light of your emotion
And the look of love from you to me
As the night turns into day
Only us drift away

So far away
Drifting away
So far away
Drifting away
Drift away, away, away, away, away, away
