If He Can't Have You

Whiskeytown

Hang a picture up on your wall Tighten all the nails so it don't fall In this picture, could have been a picture of my face Something painful, went and took its place If he can't have you, guess that no one else will Watch him think a while, smoke a cigarette and smile as I frown If he can't have you, guess that no one else will Watch him think a while, smoke a cigarette and smile as I frown Drink your coffee in the morning And at night, go and drink your beer All along you don't feel so welcome here And I walk by and you steer clear You always said it'd come passionate here Don't like what you see, you don't like what you hear If he can't have you, guess that no one else will Watch him think a while, smoke a cigarette and smile as I frown If he can't have you, guess that no one else will Watch him think a while, smoke a cigarette and smile as I frown
