Friday's Child

We've been told To live our lives - just working on a feeling Waiting for The sun to shine on what we do believe in I'm every man I hear the cry of someone else A drowning man reaching out But no-one hears I know a man living out his life Without a reason And he says: "Monday's got a beautiful baby And Wednesday's child can never win Little Saturday will work till he's crazy But Friday's child Was born to give." Now what about All the unborn people that will suffer At the hands of Mr. Right who cares about no other I see a mother who lets her children use her up I know a father Who sacrifices his wayward son I wonder What you give that someone else is needing nothing Next to nothing

Monday's got a beautiful baby And Wednesday's child can never win Little Saturday will work till he's crazy But Friday's child Was born to give
