

The Cross

Woe, Is Me

The sin of the world was placed upon Him, leaving our filthy stains.

His holy body was placed in the earth for three days and three nights.

He descended low into the earth, the place where spirits were held.

He took the keys of hell and death, plans of the enemy failed.

Into hell and back again, capturing captivity.

Into hell and back again, openly.

The battle has been won.

The tomb is empty; He's alive.

He ascended on high.

Arisen from the grave now we all can be saved the price for sin is now paid
