

You Were The Light

Woods of Ypres

Your pretty causes
Make quick conversation
While another world is yearning
Painfully for an end

And who would save me now
Now that you are gone
And who would save you from yourself
You were the light
That shone by me in the night
You were the light
That shone actually on my life

Whenever when you are weak
Whenever when you are strong
Pretending that I'm ok
The comfort when you are lost

And who would save me now
Now that you are gone
And who would save you from yourself
You were the light
That shone by me in the night
You were the light
That shone actually on my life
Those that don't ever cry
Have lock it up for the outside
Look down on me from the bad journey
At all that I'd really tried

And if you change your mind
Then you are toss aside
And if you change your mind
You know that you were right

And you would be just fine

Come on, you knew
But as you want it too
You made all decisions on your own
And left me without a choice to choose

I don't feel
Whatever haunts you now
Since there is no one else
Accounting for your cruelty
You will see no consequence
And though I am not to blame
I suffer all the same

And who would save me now
Now that you are gone
And who would save you from yourself
You were the light
That shone by me in the night
You were the light

You were the light
That flash left me in the dark
You were the light
The only light I'll ever know
You were the light
