

Dear Bobbie

Yellowcard

Do you remember when you were young and very pretty? I do, I remember pleated skirts, black and white saddle shoes. Do you remember dancing that night?
I do, I still think of you when we dance, although we can't jitterbug as we did then.

Do you remember when
How long has it been?
1945 you opened my blue eyes
To see a whole new life
Do you remember when
I told you this that night,
That if you're by my side
When everyday begins
I'll fall for you again
I made a promise when
I told you this that night

And I'll be fine
Cause when I die, than I die loving you
It's alright, I'll be fine
Cause when I die, than I die loving you
Loving you, loving you.

Do you remember the times we would give up on each other and get back together, then we finally was married in 1949. We drove the yellow convertible all night long.
Do you remember? I do.

Life has led us here
Together all these years

This house that we have
Holds twenty-thousand days
And memories we've saved
Since life has led us here

And I'll be fine
Cause when I die, than I die loving you
It's alright, I'll be fine
Cause when I die, than I die loving you
Loving you, loving you.

(3x)

I'm coming home to you
Stepping off my shoes
Resting in my chair
See you standing there
The silver in your hair
I'm coming home to you

When I lay tonight, when I close my eyes
I know the sun will rise

Here the nextlife
As long as your stillmine, then it'salright

I'll befine
Cause when Idie, than Idie lovingyou
It'salright, I'll befine
Cause when Idie, than Idie lovingyou
Lovingyou, loving you.

You have gray hair now but you're a beautiful women and the years have been good to both us.
We walk slow now, but we still have eachother. The glue of love is still bon ding us together.
That is what I remember. Do you remember?
