

Endure

Zao

I will endure. It will endure in me. Until the end, forever. I will endure.
If we continue in these ways, rebellion bends towards hatred. We rise up for our cause, and forsake the outsiders. Where is this love, this understanding? Who will stand? What will break down. if this uprise of self is left to reign? This age screams for a standard to uphold, and an answer for the questions. The wavering of beliefs lead to destruction. Nothing remains constant to its origin but the unchange faith of Christ . The one stable since creation. Thoughts have come, and theories have gone. Nothing has lasted through resistance. But who can deny, who can dispute the faith that's been throughout since the foundation of the beginning? It has always been and always will be. Forever. It has been proven. It shall remain. This faith has stood the test. It persists through the conflict. Through the revolt against its ways, nothing has held true like this. No other has revealed such strength. The roots run deep within. Entangling around my rock. Never letting go of this truth. The power that has sustained me. I will endure in what I believe and what I believe will endure in me...