Blur

Zebrahead

Did you ever get the feeling that you were all alone And no one ever knew you and you never had a home And the lights and the colors do their best to distract you Fuck you. I don't even know why I like you It's all a blur (2x)

Like a picture, it's all a blur You don't know what you're missing You don't know what you're missing I've been trying so hard just to keep away And now look where I am standing at today Trying so hard to walk away But it's impossible to watch you fade away

Did you ever stop believing after all was said and done? When you turned to your friends but they were long gone And the sky and the snapshots remind you I trust you and I'm always going to miss you It's all a blur, it's all a blur Like a picture Reminds me who you were

Like a picture, it's all a blur You don't know what you're missing You don't know what you're missing I've been trying so hard just to keep away And now look where I am standing at today Trying so hard to walk away But it's impossible to watch you fade away

Every time I see you look at me I see those distant eyes and your looks are fading Every time you're next to me I want to talk and feel and act like we used to Cause everybody knows and everybody cares Until they're walking in my shoes And now I know It's you that I cannot lose It's all a blur And I owe you You can take it all When I call, pick up the phone like you used to It's all a blur Like a picture It's all a blur You're just a blur!

I've been trying so hard just to keep away And now look where I am standing at today Trying so hard to walk away But it's impossible to watch you fade away Trying, dying so hard I've been denying that I'm not scarred I've been crying, lying so far But it's impossible to fill this space Impossible to take your place Impossible to watch you fade away Watch you fade away (3x)
