Someone's laughing They must have caught a glimpse of you They sound so happy So what am I supposed to do? No one's blameless You're having way too much fun here They're suicidal And no one seems to really care If I could be a part of this one You could have the driver's side and If I could be just half what you've been My life would be complete and I'd be The same old person but in your shoes and I'd Know the people that you know too Who's that laughing The fuss they cause is everywhere It's inspirational They've got to know we're out there
