Never seen it so dark Where have you gone? Am I walking all alone? I remember all the good times we had together And I wonder where I went wrong I need to feel your touch I need you here so much I look everywhere but I cannot find I need to have you here Without your love I'll lose my mind Is it a crime? To feel the way I feel Is it a crime? When I know it's so real People have forgotten me But that doesn't matter much Because you're all I need But now I can't find you I want to remind you that your love is everything to me I look to talk to you But the words just won't come out If I push real hard they come right back at me Alone in my room they bounce right off the walls
